Image credits and usage information

Guidance for selecting, crediting and reproducing images and other visual assets in editorial coverage of the MUSE Event Awards.

Use the supplied asset and its instructions

Media assets are provided for accurate editorial coverage and remain subject to their accompanying credit and usage guidelines. Use the original file released through the Press & Media page or supplied by the media team. Follow any restrictions attached to that specific file.

A photograph appearing on an awards website, social account or linked article is not, by itself, confirmation that it is cleared for republication. Request the approved media file and its credit before reproducing it.

Credits and captions

Reproduce the supplied credit exactly, including photographer, agency or other rights-holder attribution where required. A courtesy credit identifies a supplier; it does not establish ownership or replace required photographer credits. Do not assign copyright to MUSE or IAA unless the asset's instructions identify the rights holder that way.

Captions should identify what is actually shown: the event or work, credited organization or person, and relevant award program and year. Keep entrant, featured project and winner status distinct. Work recognized by another MUSE program must not be described as a MUSE Event Awards winner.

Editorial integrity

- Do not alter a logo or crop out required credits, watermarks or identifying information.
- For photographs, follow the supplied editing and cropping restrictions and retain an accurate representation of the subject.
- Do not present a rendering, composite or AI-generated visualization as a documentary photograph.
- Do not use images to imply endorsement, sponsorship, partnership or affiliation.

Asset specific permission and credit requirements

Asset	Information required before publication
Official award logo	Original official file and the brand and logo usage guidelines
Campaign key visual	Approved file, supplied caption and credit, and any format or reuse restrictions
Event or project photograph	Confirmed editorial permission, work title, credited contributor and required photographer or rights-holder credit
Juror portrait	Confirmed jury status, accurate name and role, approved portrait and supplied credit and restrictions
Statuette image	Official image, accurate program and year identification, supplied credit and reuse instructions
Third-party company logo	Applicable permission and brand restrictions; accurate context that does not imply affiliation

Requesting an image

Send the media team the asset or subject requested, publication name, intended coverage, publication date, format and planned use. Ask for the original file, exact caption, credit line and any applicable restrictions. Request written permission for uses beyond the stated editorial purpose.

Submitted work and third party rights

Entrants retain ownership of their submitted content. The published competition terms provide permissions for competition administration, judging, publicity and related official uses. These terms should not be presented as a blanket licence for an unrelated publisher to reuse every submitted image. Obtain asset-specific instructions from the media team.
